

The index below will assist researchers looking to compile a listing of men who served from a particular county. The index is alphabetical by county. Under each county is listed the regiments and companies of service and the North Carolina Troops, 1861-1865: A Roster volume where information on those regiments and companies can be found.

While the list is comprehensive it is not exhaustive – a researcher will find that a company may be composed mainly of men from a single county but still may contain men from some other county. It is necessary to check the printed North Carolina Troops, 1861-1865: A Roster series in its entirety to find those men who are outliers in any given company. Not all companies are listed in this document. Some companies - particularly artillery, cavalry, Local Defense, Senior and Junior reserves – were composed of men from multiple counties. Researchers should search those Roster volumes independent of the listing below.

The information comes from a set of index cards researched and organized by previous staff members of the Civil War Roster project. Current staff checked the entries for each county against the published volumes (XXI to date). At this time, the list does not include the Confederate navy, any of the other Confederate state units formed with North Carolina men, any of the national service Confederate units, or any of the United States units formed in this state or with North Carolina men.

From 1861 to 1865, North Carolina had 89 counties. Therefore, the following listing only contains 89 county headings. Four post-war counties – Durham (formed from Wake and Orange Counties in 1881), Lee County (formed from Chatham and Moore Counties 1907), Pamlico (formed from Beaufort and Craven Counties in 1872), and Scotland County (from Richmond County in 1899) are mentioned in this document. The information for those four post-war counties is placed in the parent-county, as noted above. Additionally, two companies include men from the state of Tennessee.
